

The seal of the State of California is prominently displayed in the center. It features a circular design with the words "EUREKA", "1846", and "CALIFORNIA" around the perimeter. The central image depicts a miner with a pickaxe and a plow, symbolizing the state's agricultural and mining industries. The seal is flanked by two bears and is set against a background of a landscape with trees and a building. Above the seal, the words "State of California" are written in a large, stylized font, with "State" and "California" in a larger size than "of". The entire graphic is framed by a decorative arch.
